Choreographic Research

2023

(in process) Look into my Voice, Hear my Dance* (LVHD*): Participants from the 2020 iteration have joined me in taking LVHD to a national iteration and work has begun on planning and fundraising, for a process that will continue till Fall 2025 and culminating in a new presentation.

Changing Bodies, Shifting Landscapes

- (18 minutes, 7 dancers, 5 musicians) Produced and choreographed with dancers and with original music score created by Carnatic music ensemble
- A collaborative work to reflect on changes in the female body that occur throughout life, specifically referring to menstruation and customs and inequities due to it
- 1st section—set choreography of karana movements reflecting stories of the shame and embarrassment but also of confidence from kindness and understanding
- 2nd section—real-time composition, moving from predetermined form to open score, representative of how we can expand our experiences and explore new ways of being/relating as women across generations, cultures, and genders
- Built on conversations through the Critical Response Process with dance collaborators bringing together different movement practices and music collaborators improvising an original music score to support the movement
- Supported in part by AZ Commission on the Arts
- Showings
 - June 24: 1st iteration, ASU Kerr Cultural Center
 - September 16: 2nd iteration, ASU Kerr Cultural Center

2022

Mangalam

- (10 minutes, 2 dancers) Produced & choreographed Work in Progress, funded by Arizona Commission on the Arts Research & Development Grant
- November 6: debuted work as part of Dansense-Nrtyabodha 2022-23 Series Event “A Collaboration in Music & Dance” at ASU Kerr Cultural Center, translated research into collaborative piece with 5 artists from different musical and dance disciplines.

2021

Prakriti Surging

A collaborative work in progress:

Prakriti Surging a stand-alone work in two phases (film and multimedia performance), brings together a constellation of female artists/activists with varied disciplinary and cultural lenses. Collaborators: Eileen Standley, Sai Pratyusha Gutti, Coley Curry

When My Stomach Misses Home, Mesa Arts Center

Hack the MAC Series: Workshop in partnership with Local First Community Kitchen with food performance artist Jisun Myung. Workshop that asks participants to consider the kitchen as a site of play, intention and memory and sharing cooking as a performance, a collaboration and a placemaking ritual that brings comfort through repetition and memory.

2020

Look into my Voice, Hear my Dance (LVHD)

(Full-length, 12 movers, 2 musicians)

A collaboration of Bharata Natyam dancers and survivors of sexual and domestic violence to bring their stories to the community, culminating from more than 1 year of lessons, workshops and collaborative meetings, beginning with students and dancers of Bharata-Natyam and leading into collaborative research and creative work with survivors of sexual and domestic violence.

In-Kind Support: Arizona Coalition to End Sexual & Domestic Violence, the ASU School of Film, Dance & Theater, the Sexual & Relationship Violence Prevention Program at ASU, and Arizona South Asians for Safe Families

Supported by:

- Lifelong Arts Engagement Grant—Arizona Commission on the Arts, an agency of the State of Arizona

2019-2020

Kriti

(15 minutes, 8 dancers, 4 musicians) Choreography in collaboration with 8 dancers to research how tradition can be translated from ancient thought to contemporary lived experiences through various movement practices. Produced with original musical score. A multicultural work that treats ancient stories from India with contemporary perspectives leading to individual and collective discoveries about common values and questions we have as human beings across time and borders. The original Bharata-Natyam choreography by N. Srikanth appears as a reminder to recognize our roots and foundations, even as we set out to explore new frontiers.

Performance:

- March 14 & 15, 2019—Spring Graduate Project Presentations, School of Film, Dance & Theater, Arizona State University, Tempe, AZ
- September 22, 2019—Dansense Symposium 2019, ASU Kerr Cultural Center, Scottsdale, AZ

2019

Uncontainable

(Work in progress-12 minutes, 2 dancers, 2 musicians) Choreography in collaboration with 1 dancer and 2 musicians improvising around a developed structure to reflect on the Indian idea of “kalasha,” a container representing the feminine ideal. It is worshipped, placed out of reach, and whose hopes, beliefs, stories does it contain? I am that container, right here. I hold my own stories. Listen.

Performance:

- March 22, 2019—Dance Studio and Music Composition Collaboration Night, FAC 122, Arizona State University, Tempe, AZ
- March 14 & 15, 2019—Spring Graduate Project Presentations, School of Film, Dance & Theater, Arizona State University, Tempe, AZ

- 2018 Wrap, Self, Awake
 (25 minutes) Performance in collaboration with double-violinist Gingger Shankar, this set of pieces was set for the Agents of Change Summit of the Asian Pacific Institute on Gender Based Violence. Together they touched on the subtle meanings and feelings that one might experience in a culture of oppression and violence (Wrap-10 minutes), trying to make sense of these meanings and feelings (Self-5 minutes), and then, in gaining control of them, becoming aware of oneself and the strength within and with community (Awake-10 minutes).
 Performance:
 • August 5, 2018—API-GBV Agents of Change Summit, Omni Hotel at California Plaza, Los Angeles, CA
- 2018 A Pox on Cancer
 (15 minutes, 8 dancers) Site-specific performance created in collaboration with Dr. Grant McFadden and his research team at the Biodesign Institute at ASU. The research involved learning about Dr. McFadden’s groundbreaking work in oncolytic virotherapy and making connections to popular traditions of Indian mythology which refer to the powers of the poxvirus.
 Performance:
 • April 4, 2018—“Science Exposed”, Biodesign Institute of ASU, Tempe, AZ
- 2017 Chakra
 (10 minutes) Solo piece tries to make sense of the turmoil of our times and how their intensity draws us in towards a spiraling oblivion.
 Performances:
 • October 7, 2017—Arizona Dance Festival curated by Desert Dance Theater, Tempe Center for the Arts, Tempe, AZ
 • October 26-27, 2017— Fall Graduate Project Presentations, School of Film, Dance & Theater, Arizona State University, Tempe, AZ
- 2015 EMBRACE—A conversation about change
 (Evening-length work, 4 dancers) A multi-layered concept using dance, installation and digitized art in collaboration with artists Nirmal Raja and Dara Larson, “EMBRACE” looks at change and the struggle we face personally and as a society when confronted by its necessity. Audience participation includes weaving through installation art to exit the venue. For Dansense-Nrtyabodha’s company Stage Sanchaar.
 Performances:
 • April 18, 2015— Début in support of RedLine Gallery’s Shelter Education Program at Theater Unchained, Milwaukee, WI
 • April 30, 2016—In support of Scottish Rite Theater’s programming to underserved schools at Scottish Rite Theater, Austin, TX. This performance had an added dimension of live music by Poornima Rao and orchestra, live painting and improvisational dance in a call and response essay.
 View solo except at <https://youtu.be/j1hnmXniDN8>
- 2013 The Power of YOU
 (Evening-length work, 4 dancers) With inspiration from those who empower women in the face of violence and oppression; in 2 parts—dramatic interpretation of Kalki Krishnamurthy’s short story “The Letter” addressing widow remarriage and women’s education, and “Trigunatita,” an abstract tableau of a domestic violence survivor’s journey through the 3 gunas or innate tendencies. For Dansense-Nrtyabodha’s company Stage Sanchaar.
 Performances:
 • October 2, 2010— Début in support of Arizona South Asians for Safe Families at Kerr Cultural Center, Scottsdale, AZ.
 • October 26, 2013—In support of SAHARA of South Florida at Hollywood Central Performing Arts Center, Hollywood, FL

- 2011 Charukeshi
 (10 minutes, 4-6 dancers) This is an original creation from music composition in collaboration with Poornima Rao to choreography examining the effects of Prakriti on Purusha, Energy on Latent Consciousness. This work utilizes three different stories of Parvati and Shiva from different regions in India to highlight the varying effects of one on the other. For Dansense-Nrtyabodha's company Stage Sanchaar.
 Performances:
- April 2, 2011— Début in Stage Sanchaar's production "Shiva—Timeless Ideal, Endless Inspiration" at Boyd Vance Theater, Austin, TX.
 - September 24, 2011—10 Minutes Max curated by Dance Umbrella at Austin Ventures Studio Theater, Austin, TX.
- 2009 Final Curve
 (15 minutes, 6 dancers, 9 chorus) "Final Curve" takes its name and inspiration from Langston Hughes' poem, a collaborative work with dancers, reflecting on the past and looking to the future. For Dansense-Nrtyabodha's company Stage Sanchaar.
 Performance:
- December 31, 2009— Début as a selection for First Night Austin, City Hall, Austin, TX.

TEACHING

Courses Taught

- 2017-present Arizona State University, Tempe, AZ
- Ethnography of Dance Practices (DCE402)
 - Dance Analysis and Theory (DCE 301)
 - Introduction to Dance, in-person & online course (DCE 100)
 - Generative Critique: The Critical Response Process (DCE 494, 598)
 - Bharata-Natyam—Lens Refocused (DCE 192)
 - The Atlas of Creative Tools (DCE 494, 598)
 - Creative Practices II
 - Movement Practices II
 - Somatic Practices I

Instructional Development

- Ethnography of Dance Practices: Developed the syllabus and a new class structure, to expose students to a wide range of dance culture practices and learn how anthropological perspectives and theoretical frameworks have been used in understanding dance across contexts and are shifting towards the conscious experience of dance.
- Dance Analysis & Theory: Significantly revised the syllabus and taught the course, a critical inquiry into the nature of dance. Through investigation, description, interpretation and evaluation, students consider choreography/dance events both verbally and in written form. Traditional views of considering dance are contrasted with contemporary studies that relate dance to culture and consider the complex ways in which relations of gender, class, ethnicity, race and power are both reflected and produced through choreography/dance and their viewing.
- Introduction to Dance: Significantly revised the content and pedagogy of the course to include and more deeply examine dance practices of the marginalized majority.
- Bharata-Natyam—Lens Refocused: Developed this course with Bharata-Nrityam and engaged pedagogical values to not only learn technique but also critically examine the theoretical and embodied knowledge of the dance form.

Mentoring

- 2023-24: Mentoring 4th year Dance Students for their final Transitions Projects
- 2022: Honors Thesis Committee Member for ASU Architecture Student Ananth Udupa—
